This chapter shows you how to create and add text and graphics to your photos. First, you see how to select objects and layers with the Magic Wand tool and how to adjust the position, size, and color of text or other objects, and you learn a trick for working with multiple layers to create an interesting "close-up" effect in one step. You also discover a tool that helps remove unwanted objects, such as unwanted people in a photo. This chapter concludes with a section on basic photo editing, using the Sharpen tool to improve the overall quality of a picture. # Finding and Selecting Objects, Layers, and Tools The first task you perform with Photoshop is to select an object or layer and then make any adjustments you want. The techniques for finding and selecting these items are different. Sometimes you need to be selective and find a specific object, while at other times you want to select all objects in a document, such as layers or background elements. In this chapter, you find out what the various selection tools do and how to use them to select specific layers and objects. You also find out how to access the Edit → Select command and use the Quick Selection tool. You learn how to use the Autofill and Fill commands in the Edit → Fill command and how to select a specific area in a picture. I cover these techniques in detail as you work through the projects in this book. ## Adding Text to a Project There are only two things you can do with text in a Photoshop project: * Add text to a picture * Create a title and a keyword You can add text to a picture in one of two ways: * In Photoshop's regular Edit mode, click once on the spot where you want to add the text. (See the left image in Figure 6-1.) * In Expert mode, highlight the text and type it. If you highlight text and then double-click, the selected text becomes a clickable object. To delete the text, you can either right-click or press Backspace. Figure 6-1: Adding text to a project is easy, but you should select the right spot first.

Q: How to get multiple values in a dictionary? I have a string which contains the following: greeting: "Hello" name: "John" alive: true age: "33" How can I make a dictionary from the above string to have the following result?: { greeting: "Hello" name: "John" alive: true age: "33" } I found the following: let args = unichar.unpack(from: data) // 1 var reply = NSDictionary() if let dict = args[1] as? NSDictionary { // I know that this is the line for the dictionary reply.updateValue(dict as! String, forKey: "alive") } // 2 if let dict = args[0] as? NSDictionary { // I know this is the line for getting the String var dictString : NSString? dictString = dict.object(forKey: "alive") as? NSString print(dictString!) } Both of the above examples produces an dictionary with the last condition. It seems like the language is just ignoring the if statement and not using the code inside the if statement. I know there are better ways to do this using JavaScript, but my question is how to do this in Swift 4. A: You can just use: [args.first!, args.second!] this will give you an array of 2 values. If you want it in one dict you can do: ["greeting: \"Hello"", "name: \"John"", "alive: true", "age: \"33""] .map{String($0)} .reduce([String:String], {(dict, value) -> [String:String] in if let value = value as? String { dict[value] = value } else { dict["\(value)"] =
